3DEC is a three-dimensional numerical modeling code for advanced geotechnical analysis of soil, rock, ground water, structural support, and masonry. 3DEC simulates the response of discontinuous media (such as jointed rock or masonry bricks) that is subject to either static or dynamic loading. The numerical formulation is based on the distinct element method (DEM) for discontinuum modeling.

The Universal Distinct Element Code (UDEC) is a two-dimensional numerical software that simulates the quasi-static or dynamic response to loading of media containing multiple, intersecting joint structures. The discontinuous medium is represented as an assemblage of discrete blocks while the discontinuities are treated as boundary conditions between blocks.

PFC3D Pressure Boundary Condition. A pressure boundary condition can be applied to the surface of a PFC3D model via the shining-lamp algorithm, which was developed to support rock-cutting simulations in which a cutter is moved at a specified velocity and depth of cut across the surface of a PFC3D material, while monitoring forces on the cutter and damage in the material.
