Different types of intravenous (IV) solution may be used in different types of conditions. Typically, there are two main types of solution that may be used: colloids and crystalloids. Human blood is considered a colloid, as well as water mixed with insoluble materials such as gelatin. Crystalloids are usually composed of water and soluble materials like mineral salts.

When the solution contains more solute than would be necessary to saturate it then it is termed as supersaturated solution. Types of solutions. All the three states of matter (gas, liquid or solid) may behave either as solvent or solute. Depending on the state of solute or solvent, mainly there may be following nine types of binary solutions.

The three types of solution sets: A system of linear equations can have no solution, a unique solution or infinitely many solutions. A system has no solution if the equations are inconsistent, they are contradictory. for example  $2x+3y=10$ ,  $2x+3y=12$  has no solution. is the rref form of the matrix for this system.

Answer (1 of 15): There are three types of solutions. Isotonic solutions, Hypotonic solutions and Hypertonic solutions. Each type of solution have different chemical properties. First one is Isotonic Solutions. Isotonic solution are those solutions, which have the same osmotic pressure, 0.9% NaCl is isosmotic with the human blood plasma. If human red blood cells are placed in this solution ...
